

Caribbean filmmakers to be recognised for human rights

Monday Sep 11 | Read more: Trinidad Express

Prev StoryNext Story

The Trinidad and Tobago Film Festival will once again underline the importance of film as a vehicle for raising awareness about human rights issues and advancing inclusion and social justice, with the awarding of the Amnesty International Human Rights Film Prize. Established in an effort to support the promotion of human rights in Trinidad and Tobago and the Caribbean, the Amnesty International Human Rights Prize will be awarded to a Caribbean filmmaker whose film best highlights a human rights issue.

Start the conversation, or Read more at Trinidad Express.