

Award winner One In debuts today in Film Fest

Published: Thursday, September 21, 2017

Vasha Narace's short film, One In, won the Dutch Golden Stone Award for Best Short Fiction in 2016.

This film will have its Caribbean premiere at the T&T Film Festival which runs until September 26.

A scene from One In by Trinidadian director Vasha Narace.

One In, a 15-minute short which addresses a sensitive social issue, portrays the poignant and dynamic relationship of an 11-year-old girl and her parents who take in their recently orphaned teenage nephew.

Narace wrote and directed the film as well as the music video and title song One In Deep sung by Amber Patiño, the lead actress.

"The subject matter was hard for the cast. In the beginning we couldn't get through a reading without someone crying," Narace said. "So I decided to have them pretend that the film was about something else completely just so we could make it through and still have some fun. I didn't want these kids going home feeling sad or depressed. I actually had a therapist on set for a day in case anyone needed her.

"I believe that this is my purpose, to bring stories to life that will highlight social issues and impact people to make positive changes."

Narace has loved the arts since she was seven, acting in school plays throughout primary and secondary school in T&T. While pursuing her BBA at the University of Miami, she worked behind the scenes for Quantum Productions, filling a range of roles. In her mid-20s she decided to give her dream of acting one last chance and moved on from corporate life in the financial services sector to earn a Masters in Filmmaking (MA) at the New York Film Academy. This she says was "one of the best decisions I ever made."

Narace is currently working on a new feature inspired by true events about a Trinidadian family that she wrote in collaboration with another Trinidadian filmmaker Kylie Jacob. She looks forward to shooting parts of the feature in Trinidad and is quite open to meeting with local investors and producers to explore the possibilities.
